

Anniversary of horrendous Rana Plaza garment factory collapse,
24th April 2014

The 24th April 2014 marks the first anniversary of the Rana Plaza disaster, which killed 1,138 people and injured many more, when the factory complex collapsed in Dhaka, Bangladesh.

The anniversary marks the opportunity to reflect on the direst consequences for so many dead and injured working people, the opportunity to reflect on how something like this could happen, and the opportunity to reflect on what needs to be done to try and ensure that it can't happen again.

Fairtrade Ireland supports the universal demand, from the trade unions, citizens and shoppers alike, for greater transparency and accountability in the textile industry.

As a mark of respect to the dead and injured in Rana Plaza we are encouraging people to ask one simple question, 'Who Made Your Clothes?'

Fashion Revolution Day - One practical way people can show their respect, and their support for workers in the textile industry, is by wearing an item of clothing inside out to show off the label, photographing it, and then sharing it on all social networks with the hashtag #insideout. The action will send a clear signal to the industry that people want change.
